

WS RELEASE . . . .

from the OFFICE of DISTRICT ATTORNEY - Norfolk County

FROM DISTRICT ATTORNEY GEORGE G. BURKE FOR RELEASE AT IMMEDIATELY

June 1, 1972

District Attorney George Burke of Norfolk County today stated that in the course of an investigation at Walpole State Prison regarding Stanley Bond, a tape recording made by Stanley Bond on May 23, 1972 was discovered. The explosion took place the following morning at Walpole State Prison. His remarks are self-explanatory, which are as follows:

This is Stanley Bond at Walpole Prison. It's May 23, 1972, Tuesday afternoon. I've just come in from the Foundry with Billy Lorenson and Lefty Gilday. Today we test fired the shotgun that I completed work on last week. It was safe and accurate. It worked well. I put it away upstairs with the other weapons. Our weapons now include Billy's pistol, although he hasn't finished it yet, a knife that I made, a billy club taken from the guard, and two pine bombs that are filled with matches that we all worked to grind down. Also, a portable walkie-talkie and this tape recorder. Later, we'll go out in the yard and relax some, maybe eat some ice cream. We're a little tired and a little jumpy. I'll try to get a call through to my wife. The weather's been very good today and yesterday. We're hoping it will stay this way. It's the kind of weather we want for Friday. We just come in from the yard. We relaxed just a little bit. It's clear to me that there's still lots of doubts in our minds about what we're doing. It's a hard thing we're doing. It's been hard all the while. I just got through to Sonia. She's tired and worried, a little nervous. We've been under really incredible strain. It's impossible really to describe the sort of effort we've had to put out to bring everything together the way we have. The weapons we've had to make ourselves right from scratch and by hand because we just couldn't get them any other way. We wouldn't have had any help from the outside except for one person. It's just been very, very, very difficult. The fact that the three of us have been working in here, in a maximum security institution environment, and getting away with the things we've been getting away with. Building the things we've been building right in front of them, keeping them in our rooms in the midst of shakedowns and all the other things that happened here. It's just really unbelievable. Many times we've just had to ignore trouble when it comes as if it won't hurt us, and so far it hasn't hurt us. It's come, and it just hasn't hurt us. It's been sort of paper tigers all the way. We know it will change, though. We'll be real tigers. We can see that. We aren't sure yet who we're gonna send this tape to. We know who we're making it for, but we're just not sure where we're gonna send it. We feel isolated sometimes in our thinking, and we know that with a tape like this you should have your own way of making it available to other people, and you should have your own sort of media, but we don't. So, we have to sort of give it to someone else's media. It's not something we really want to do. It's something we have to do. We call ourselves the Community for there are only four of us now. We think like a family, but we're too desperate really to be a real family. We have no politics really. I mean we have no political basis to work from not because there aren't any there but because we don't see one that has a real future to it. The futures we see to the political basis that others are working from just don't appeal to us, and they don't support us or sustain us. They don't offer us something that we need. Of course, two of us are already condemned to death and the other two condemned so to join us, and our needs are very great. We really don't expect politics to help us much more. Politics is still the way that strangers relate to one another. Strangers just have a hard time helping people in situations as serious as ours. It is clear that we shall have to build our own politics much the same way we built the weapons we're going to use to escape from this prison. I don't mean just the shotgun and the pistol and the bombs, but also with belief we built in each other and the courage we found in our hearts and then in the hope to move. This tape recorder is good. I can stop and think for a moment and talk.
